

SAMPLE COW-CALF SHARE LEASE AGREEMENT

I. INTRODUCTION

There are two basic livestock leases: a cow-calf share lease and a pasture cash lease. The lease agreement will state the amount payable, the date of the payment, the length of the lease term and the rights and responsibilities of both parties, depending on the type of lease. In a cow-calf share lease, the owner will receive a share of all calf sales. In a pasture cash lease, the tenant will receive the income from all livestock sales and will pay the landlord a fixed dollar amount for each year of the agreement.

A. Considerations

- Farmers can expand production without financing land purchases.
- Production and marketing risk can be shared.
- Inter-generational farm transfers can be facilitated.
- Retirement income can be earned on real property.
- Farmers have increased flexibility in farm planning decisions.
- Rent paid over a long period of time does not contribute to equity of tenant.
- Appreciation in land value goes to the landlord.
- The tenant's security of tenure is limited to the length of the term of lease.
- Long term farming practices which promote production efficiency, soil conservation and improvements may not be practiced in short term leases.

B. Features of Successful Lease Agreements

- The landlord/owner and tenant should be open and honest with each other, and be able to resolve disagreements cordially.
- To maximize long term profit, the terms of the lease should be fair to both the landlord/owner and tenant.
- Written agreements help to prevent conflict between the landlord/owner and tenant, and force them to think through an equitable and reasonable lease.
- Leases should be flexible enough to permit fair adjustments to any unexpected situations.
- A lease should be adapted to suit each individual situation, yet remain simple enough to work. The lease period should also be long enough to allow the tenant to adopt good farming practices.

C. Tax Considerations in Leasing Land

- Rental income earned by a landlord can be included as earnings in calculating the maximum allowable RRSP contribution, and in calculating Canada Pension Plan (CPP) contributions. A bargain purchase option exercised at a price significantly lower than the fair market value at the end of the lease can create an unexpected tax liability. An accountant or farm management advisor should be consulted before entering into any custom farming arrangement or lease which contains a bargain purchase option.

II. SELECTING A LEASE AGREEMENT

Select an appropriate lease arrangement and adapt it to suit your particular situation. In a cow-calf share lease, the owner will receive a share of all calf sales. In a pasture cash lease, the tenant will receive the income from all livestock sales and will pay the landlord a fixed dollar amount for each year of the agreement.

Factors other than the rental amount to consider in selecting a lease agreement include:

- Method and Time of Rental Payment
Rent due dates and the method of calculating rent depend on the type of lease agreement. In a cow-calf share lease, the owner will receive the share of the calf sales when the calves are sold. In a pasture cash lease, the rental payment may be paid in full at the beginning of the season or it may be divided into a spring and fall payment.
- Length of the Lease
Cow-calf share leases often have longer lease terms since it can be extended without renegotiating the rental amount. Pasture cash leases should reflect changes in livestock prices.
- Proper Farming Practices
Leases may contain terms which influence cropping decisions and management practices of a tenant.
- Ease of Rent Calculations
For cow-calf share leases, accurate records must be kept. Pasture cash leases may be determined annually.

III. TYPES OF LEASE ARRANGEMENTS

A. Cow-calf Share Lease

- The share arrangement could be either the share/split method or the flexible share method. For information on estimating cow share rental values refer to: Cow Share Lease Calculator.
- The calf share lease agreement could clarify and define the owner's and farmer's rights and responsibilities regarding the following areas:

- Influence on Management Decisions – An owner may wish to influence the management decisions and production practices of a farmer to maintain the quality and condition of the land.
- Delivery and Sale of Calves - Both parties should agree on who will have the responsibility for delivery and sale of the calves.
- Government Payments and Subsidies - Under these programs, usually the farmer receives the payments and subsidies in the same proportion as the share of the calves (or a stated amount or percentage).

B. Pasture Cash Lease

In a pasture cash lease, the tenant will pay a fixed cash payment to the landlord for the use of the land and facilities. The tenant will receive all of the income and pay all his own expenses. The pasture cash lease is suited for absentee landlords and those who wish to have a stable income.

Considerations:

- The landlord can receive a guaranteed return.
- The tenant has more flexibility and independence in production and management decisions.
- The results of the tenant's superior farming skill are not shared with the landlord.
- The tenant assumes all production and marketing risk.
- Part of the rent may be required to be paid in advance of calf sales.
- The landlord has less influence on a tenant's management decisions.
- Leases are generally short term due to periodic changes in livestock prices.
- The landlord will not immediately feel the effects of extreme fluctuations in productivity and prices.
- The cash rental amount can be determined using the income share approach, but is usually established by going rates in an area. These going rates are influenced by land productivity and current market prices for livestock, as well as supply and demand for rental land in the community.
- The cash lease agreement should specify the date(s) on which the rent is due and payable; and the rights of the landlord to recover the payment of rent. In addition to the rights provided by The Real Property Act, a landlord should specify the actions he can take to recover the debt.

IV. STEPS IN COMPLETING A LEASE AGREEMENT

1. Consult with your farm management advisor and lawyer.
2. Study and compare the examples and sample lease agreement forms provided by Manitoba Agriculture. It will assist you in determining the type of leasing agreement which will best suit the needs of both the landlord(s) and tenant(s). Remember, the type of lease agreement you choose must be adapted for each individual situation.
3. Determine an equitable rental arrangement by first studying the example and then using the worksheet provided for your calculations.

4. READ AND DISCUSS the lease with the prospective landlord(s) and tenant(s) and make changes where desired. Some clauses include a choice of terms. Select the terms that suit your situation. Delete term(s) which do not apply by drawing a line through them and have the parties to the lease initial the deletion(s). If the terms do not suit your situation, write out the terms that meet your particular needs. Wording is important so it is advisable to consult a lawyer.

Important terms in all lease agreements requiring careful attention by a landlord and tenant include:

- compensation for repairs to building, fences and improvements
 - rights, responsibilities and compensation for major improvements
 - restrictions and responsibilities regarding production practices and management decisions
 - rights and restrictions of storing grain on leased property at the beginning and end of the lease
 - arbitration
5. The landlord(s) and tenant(s) should each receive one copy of the lease agreement, with any required supplementary forms attached.
 6. Provision should be made on the agreement forms for signatures of joint landlords and tenants.
 7. Ensure that the requirements of The Homestead Act are fulfilled when the leased property is a homestead property.

The act requires that the spouse give his/her written consent (consent-of-spouse form) to any disposition of a homestead property.

The act also requires that the spouse appear before a solicitor, notary public, justice of the peace, the registrar of land titles, a local registrar of the Court of King's Bench or district court judge to have this form completed. This is to ensure the spouse understands his/her rights in the homestead and that the lease agreement and consent-of-spouse form be signed of his/her own free will without any compulsion on the part of the other spouse.

8. Complete the Affidavit of Execution

When all parties have signed a lease agreement, it is final and binding. If the signatures are witnessed and the witness completes the affidavit of execution, it is not necessary at a later date to prove the signatures.

9. Where required, complete the following supplementary forms:

- Caveat

A tenant should register a caveat against the land title of the rental property to protect his lease in the event of a change in land ownership.

- Lease Renewal

To renew the lease agreement, complete the LEASE RENEWAL FORM, THE HOMESTEAD ACT CONSENT-OF-SPOUSE, CERTIFICATE OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT BY SPOUSE, and the AFFIDAVIT OF EXECUTION.

A CAVEAT must also be completed to have an enforceable lease with a new landowner.

- Consent to Make Major Improvements

The tenant should have the landlord complete the CONSENT TO MAKE MAJOR IMPROVEMENTS form in duplicate prior to making major improvements on the rented land. It should be clearly outlined what buildings or improvements are to be made, who will pay the cost of materials, and how the tenant will be compensated for his labour or any costs which he may incur. Attach one copy of each form to each copy of the lease agreement.
